

OVER 200 LOST LIVES IN SOUTHERN TORNADOES

'STILL MISSING' ONLY WORD FROM LINDBERGH HOME

No Word From Junior, Born 21 Months Ago Today

Hopewell, N. J., Mar. 22—(AP)—Charles A. Lindbergh, Jr., was born 21 months ago today and kidnapped just three weeks ago, and the world still has no idea where he is.

The ominously recurring phrase "still missing", like the dropping water of an oriental torture, is wearing down the resistance of parents and searchers.

Chief Detective Elmer Hann of Hunterdon county is impatient. He said yesterday he believed the baby will be returned through Col. Lindbergh's private negotiations, but not until state police have withdrawn. The "noise" created by the huge search organization has not helped, he said.

An opinion that certain angles of the case ought to be considered by the grand jury when it meets April 22 was expressed by the sheriff in whose county the Lindbergh house is situated, Attorney General William Stevens, who has taken over the duties of Hunterdon Prosecutor because that office is vacant, said, however, he would not put the case before the grand jury.

There is a possibility, though, that the grand jury will investigate the alleged invasion of the sordid country by gangsters from Brooklyn.

Old time residents of a section whose traditions the intrusion of shadowy characters whom gossip links with the "applejack" racket and worse.

Police Are Silent

Police at the Lindbergh home with interest about a New York raid made in an effort to capture Harry Fleischer, Detroit purple gangster, wanted for questioning about the kidnapping of the Lindbergh baby, but they would make no comment.

There was little to distract their attention from the latest development in the metropolis for there was no slightest "break" in the case here or elsewhere in New Jersey.

The morning bulletin issued by Col. H. Norman Schwarzkopf, Superintendent of State Police, was little more than a succession of negatives.

He said he had no knowledge of the reported entrance into the case of Wallace Caldwell of Chicago.

There were no developments in connection with the note seeming to bear on the case found attached to a pigeon in South Kent, Conn.

REPORT "CONTACTS"

Chicago, Mar. 22—(AP)—The Daily News said today that H. Wallace Caldwell, member of the Chicago Board of Education, had established contacts with Col. Charles A. Lindbergh and agents of the U. S. Secret Service because of anonymous information which he believed came from the kidnapers of the Lindbergh baby.

Caldwell, a former Naval pilot and former head of the Chicago school board, was reported to have made two visits to the Lindbergh home at Hopewell, N. J., recently.

The News said he was acting on instructions which came to him by telephone. Caldwell was informed, the paper said, that the kidnapers would deal only with Col. Lindbergh, with Caldwell or with the Secret Service agents. Acting on these instructions the News said, Caldwell had gone to Washington as well as Hopewell.

Reported Connection

Caldwell's connection with the case began in a Chicago night club a few nights after the kidnaping, the News said. Caldwell told members of his party that he and Col. Lindbergh had a mutual friend, an aviator, and that he would "certainly be glad to help Lindbergh."

The next day, the paper related, Caldwell received a mysterious telephone call. He said, the News said, that his remark had been overheard and that he might be able to

Plane Crashes Yesterday Took Toll Of 4 Lives

By The Associated Press.

Three fliers were killed in air crashes in the United States and Canada yesterday and the body of Hal George, Columbus air-mail pilot, was found in the cockpit of his wrecked plane near Brown's Island on the Ohio river.

Dr. Carol S. Cole, St. Louis woman physician, and a passenger in George's ship, was missing and a hunt for her was being pressed today. She was believed to have jumped from the plane when it encountered trouble in a sleet storm Saturday.

Second Lieut. R. P. O'Keefe of Langley Field, Va., was killed after his first pursuit plane collided with that of Second Lieut. Rowland S. Akre during maneuvers over Plum Island and fell 8,000 feet. Lieut. Akre managed to fly his plane over Langley field, although one wing had been torn off, and jumped safely with a parachute.

Second Lieut. William Lamar Parham of Nashville, Ga., a West Point graduate of last June, fell to his death while practicing over the Army field at San Antonio, Texas, and one Canadian flier was reported killed during tests of a new slotted wing biplane over the Rockliffe air-drome near Ottawa.

DIXON OFFICER CAPTURES FOUR BIG SWINDLERS

Hal Roberts Leads In Tracking Down Bad Check Artists

Chicago, March 22—(AP)—Illinois state police working under the "Secret Six" of Chicago held today four men accused of swindling $300,000 from merchants and banks in many Illinois cities through false checks.

H. B. Francis, 41, Springfield and E. Dayton, 25, Chicago, were arrested at a Waukegan hotel last night. Charles Fietzer, 50, and Arthur F. Anderson, 40, both of Chicago, were seized here.

Officer Hal Roberts of the Illinois State Police said Francis had confessed. Roberts was aided by Sgt. Roy Steffens and Charles A. Toulinsky of the "Secret Six", a crime-fighting organization of Chicago merchants, and his chief, Superintendent W. L. Moody of the State Police.

Complaints against the men came from 40 or 50 towns all over the state, Roberts said, during the past six months. The gang wrote its own checks and passed them mostly on banks but also at stores and hotels. Their haul reached over $300,000.

Tyne After Thieves.

State Highway Officer Frank Tyne has been assigned to special duty for several days with Officers Wilbur Cushman of Sterling and Glenn Erdmeier of Savanna in the roundup of a band of automobile thieves, who are believed to have been active in northern Illinois and eastern Iowa for several months. It was reported today that James Sorrensen, aged 45, an ex-convict had been arrested at his home at Wacker, a small community near Mt. Carroll county jail under bonds of $2,000. Two stolen Buick cars, believed to have been taken from Chicago were reported to have been found in the Sorrensen garage.

George Chouse, 26, of Lanark, is held on charges of possessing and selling stolen automobiles with altered motor numbers. Four Fords are reported to have been traced to this location and Chouse is believed by the state officers to be connected with a Chicago and Joliet gang dealing in stolen automobiles. Two men arrested several days ago near Joliet and one in Chicago are also held as being implicated with the car theft ring.

THIEF RETURNED TO SCENE OF HIS CRIME; CAPTURED

A Youth Who Stole Local Man's Car Caught Here Yesterday

James Laing, aged 19, a transient, was held to the April grand jury by Justice J. O. Shaulis late yesterday afternoon under bonds of $2,000 on a charge of larceny preferred by Chief of Police J. D. Van Bibber, following several hours of investigation into the theft of a Buick coupe on Sunday morning, March 13, belonging to Victor Eichler of this city. Laing's apprehension resulted from a very unusual course of circumstances.

The car was taken from the garage of Dr. David Murphy early Sunday morning a week ago, and last Friday was reported to have been located at Spring Valley where it had been abandoned on a side street. Laing appeared in Dixon yesterday solicited jobs shoveling snow. Going to the Dr. David Murphy home, he told a somewhat disconnected story of having seen two men driving the Eichler car on the night of the theft and again of seeing the machine in Spring Valley, where he joined the two occupants on a trip to Maquoketa, Iowa.

Repeated Story.

The same story was told to the owner of the car who summoned Chief of Police Van Bibber, who took the transient to the police station for questioning. Laing repeated his tale and Chief Van Bibber took him to the office of State Attorney Mark C. Keller for further questioning.

In a checkup of the various stories told by Laing, he finally made an affidavit in which he stated that he and two other transients, James Doherty and Charles Bickford, stole the Eichler car and drove it to Spring Valley, where they abandoned it. Laing had asked for food at the Murphy home on the morning before the theft and was accommodated, eating the food in the garage, where he inspected the Eichler car. About 1 o'clock Sunday morning, he took Doherty and Bickford to the garage and assisted them in taking the car, the confession stated.

Leaving the car at Spring Valley they proceeded to Maquoketa by freight train. At that place they planned to crash a plate glass window in a jewelry store and take several watches and had selected another automobile which they planned to take in which to make their getaway.

Laing told the night marshal of the plan which resulted in the arrest of the trio. They were taken before a justice, where all three were ordered to leave town last Saturday. Laing returning to Dixon, by way of Dubuque and Freeport.

NEW WAGE SCALE

Chicago, March 22—(UP)—Joseph D. Zook, president of the Illinois Coal Operators' Association, announced today that a proposed mine wage scale to replace the one expiring March 31 would be submitted by the operators before the close of today's sessions with representatives of Illinois District No. 12, United Mine Workers of America.

Four Near Death From Gas Fumes

Peoria, Ill., March 22—(UP)—Monoxide fumes escaping from the flue of a faulty gas heater, almost claimed the lives of four persons today. The victims were: Mrs. John Kump; her daughter, Mrs. Louise Barnett; her daughter-in-law, Mrs. Opal Kump; and her grand-daughter, Marjorie Gray, 4 years old.

All were in the basement washing clothes. Mrs. Barnett managed to stagger outside and give an alarm. Inhalator squads revived the victims in a short time.

Make Unemployment a Local Problem

Here are two communities that have solved their unemployment problem by the simple expedient of removing it.

Longdale, Calif., and Pontiac, Miss., report to War Against Depression headquarters in New York that all their unemployed have been provided with jobs.

Of course these small communities didn't have many unemployed. Longdale had seventeen and Pontiac had two. But that is about in proportion to the numbers of unemployed in larger cities. These two cities had problems that were as grave to them as are the problems in larger communities.

Here is illustrated the whole lesson of United Action for Employment as the strategy of the War Against Depression.

Instead of looking at eight millions of unemployed, each community looks only at its own problem. Instead of one colossal problem, there are just thousands of small problems.

As small problems they are being met magnificently. Each city has the brains, the resources, the wealth and the determination to find jobs for its own unemployed.

Give a job today to an unemployed worker. Help solve our own problem, while all over the nation the people of other cities are doing likewise.

FOUR MEN DIE IN HOTEL FIRE IN DALLAS, TEX.

Two Of Victims Were From Chicago: Big Freighter Afire

BULLETIN

Shawnee, Okla., March 22—(UP)—Four persons perished early today in a fire that destroyed the farm home of Stanley Haskett, eight miles southeast of here.

The dead: Stanley Haskett, 62, a farmer; Mrs. Iva Haskett, 43, his wife; Julia Haskett, 17, a daughter; Donald Haskett, 5, a son.

Another son, Hugh Haskett, 13, escaped.

BULLETIN.

San Pedro, Calif., Mar. 22—(AP)—As her crew of 50 battled a fire raging in the third hold, the freighter San Angelo was making her way toward Balboa Canal Zone today.

Radio messages received by the United States Coast Guard here said the freighter Fairfield was standing by ready to give aid.

Dallas, Tex., Mar. 22—(UP)—Four men were burned to death when fire, fanned by a strong wind, swept the Elm Hotel today. Four other men were scared by the flames.

Approximately 50 residents of the hotel fled to scanty attire and suffered from exposure to freezing weather.

The dead:

W. H. Bodenhammer, cardwriter, Chicago.

Grover Hopson Sherman, Tex.

Frank Granger, Chicago real estate man.

Frank Fisher, 40, Little Rock, laborer.

EAST CHICAGO FIRE.

East Chicago, Ind., Mar. 22—(UP)—Three buildings were destroyed and 30 families driven to the snow-choked streets in scanty clothing early today when a $100,000 fire broke out.

The fire swept through the structures rapidly and trapped several persons who were rescued from window ledges by firemen. One fireman was severely injured by a falling wall. Four others were overcome.

The first alarm was turned in by employees on a south shore electric train. Peering through the heavy gusts of snow they saw a couple trapped at a second story window. The train was halted and fire companies summoned.

When firemen arrived they rescued the couple, Roy Zink and his wife, Edward Foster, also trapped, jumped to safety from a second story window. He was uninjured. Fireman Arthur Johnson was injured when a wall gave way.

This driven from their homes were sheltered by neighbors.

The three-story auditorium hotel was destroyed at a loss of $50,000 in a second fire. Occupants of the structure which was closed for the winter were routed. Firemen fought the blaze with difficulty due to four-foot drifts that blocked all streets.

Wayne King Weds: Costs Him $2,000

Chicago, March 22—(UP)—Wayne King, orchestra leader, who swore two years ago that he wouldn't marry until he was 40, and Dorothy Jones, screen star known as Dorothy Janis, were honeymooning today amid the snows of King's northern Wisconsin farm. They were married at Highland Park yesterday.

King, who gave his age as 31, paid $2,000 to W. H. Stein, vice-president of the Music Corporation of America, as a forfeit for violating their agreement that neither would marry before the age of 40.

Mendota Business Man Disappeared From Home Sunday

(Telegraph Special Service)

Mendota, March 22—Mystery surrounded the disappearance of Henry Miller, World War veteran and Mendota business man, who left his home some time Sunday evening evidently for "parts unknown." That was the information left behind him in a note discovered by his wife about 11 o'clock Sunday night when she went to the bedroom to retire. The local police were notified and launched a search for the missing business man.

Mrs. Miller had been visiting with relatives Sunday evening and did not return home until shortly before 11 o'clock. Thinking that her husband had retired she went to the bedroom and found that he had not been there. Later, she discovered the note while looking through the house in search of her husband. Miller, proprietor of a meat market and grocery in this city for several years, had been at his store Saturday evening and was again seen on the streets Sunday morning. He was last seen early Sunday evening, when his wife left to spend the evening with relatives. Business reverses were believed responsible for his action.

WINTER'S RECESSIONAL.

Chicago, March 22—(AP)—As northern Illinois awakened today, winter still played its recessionary role. The tempo, however, was not as maddening as yesterday's when snow, driven into towering drifts by high winds, stalled motor cars, crippled rail transportation, blocked the highways and caused closing of many schools.

Electric, power and telephone lines, snapped under the fury of the winds in many instances and hail, rain and sleet in some quarters happened wreck damage and bring discomfort.

Rockford suffered most as 14 inches of snow blanketed that city last night to set a record. In the vicinity, hills of it blocked Routes No. 2 and 5 as far as Dixon, Freeport and Stockton. Autos stalled between Chicago, Joliet, Aurora and Elgin.

To the south, the winds and the snow gathered other valleys—driving sleet, hail and rain—to break down power and electric lines in Fulton county and interfere with power transmission from the Keokuk dam to Quincy. Electric lines were an hour late at Springfield and bus and electric service stopped at Peoria.

Engine Derailed.

In the heart of Belvidere a huge snow drift derailed the locomotive of a Chicago & Northwestern passenger train and it took two hours to set it right. Little damage was done and none was injured.

Dixon Boy Only Scout In Area To Win Silver Palm

JACK HABACKER

Only Boy Scout in Blackhawk Area Council to receive Silver Palm, highest honor in Scouting, and one of very few in United States. The award was made at a Court of Honor conducted last Tuesday evening at the Christian church by Executive Committee member Dement Schuler at the direction of Marshall Field III, chairman of the National Court of Honor. In qualifying for this award Scout Habacker passed about 50 tests, representing many hours of study and untiring effort.

It was necessary for the recipient to pass 21 rigid tests before being made an Eagle Scout, five more to secure the bronze medal, another five before receiving the gold award and five more to become eligible for the silver medal. Another series of about ten tests were necessary before becoming qualified for the coveted Silver Palm, which credited him with being the first and only Scout in Blackhawk Area Council to be awarded this high honor.

Silver Palm Scout Habacker is a member of Troop No. 89 of the Christian church, of which troop L. W. "Brownie" Emmert is the scoutmaster.

The Boy Scout program was launched in Dixon about five years ago when members of the Gyro club of this city underwrote the program of this city. A short time later the local movement became affiliated with the Blackhawk Area Council, which not only reduced the local financial obligation annually, but entitled the Dixon Scouts to many privileges that they would not otherwise have obtained.

HEAVIEST SNOW OF YEAR PILES HIGHWAYS FULL

State Crews Work All Night To Open Main Roads To Traffic

BULLETIN

Springfield, Ill., Mar. 22—(AP)—Highway maintenance crews who battled with drifts and driving sleet all last night had every main highway in the state open for traffic today.

The blizzard which swept the state last night was especially severe along the Wisconsin line. There were two snow blockades remaining on two north and south routes in Stephenson county today, but the maintenance department promised that they would be opened before mid-afternoon.

Another drift had traffic blocked for a short time this morning between Streator and Dwight, but it was removed rapidly by the concentration of snow clearing machinery.

Maintenance officials said that the snow fences erected last fall intercepted much of the snow and saved plow crews a vast amount of work.

The worst snow storm of the current winter, accompanied by a high wind, swept over this section Monday, but aside from delaying traffic had no serious effects. Some country roads were impassable today, but state highway maintenance forces, working all day Monday, all night and into today, had opened all main highways at noon today. City streets were piled full of snow hampering traffic considerably.

Power Interrupted

The snow caused no serious trouble in the vicinity of Dixon, it was ascertained this morning. The service of the Dixon Home Telephone Company was undisturbed and there was no interruption of service to any of its subscribers.

Two minor interruptions in electrical service occurred shortly after 6 o'clock last evening and again at 7:30. Reports from the offices of the Illinois Northern Utilities Company this morning stated that the interruptions occurred on the transmission line from Kewanee to Dixon, some distance south of this city, where sleet caused considerable damage.

Carrier Snowbound

Nate Drew of the Telegraph circulation force, whose duty is the delivery of the Telegraph to Polo subscribers, was snow bound on his return trip near the Kavanaugh corners on route 26, north of Woodstock, arriving home about 11 o'clock last night.

The star mail route serving Harmon, Amboy, Sublette and Mendota, left the post office yesterday afternoon at 3:45 making the trip with difficulty and the driver did not reach Dixon on his return until 1 o'clock this morning, having been delayed by the heavy drifts along the highway.

Superintendent of Streets Ura Klum started work this afternoon clearing some of the snow from the streets in the downtown business section. Several unemployed men were furnished shovels and trucks were being used to haul the snow to the river.

Joseph O'Malley of Marion township, found the roads impassable this morning for his automobile, when he started for Dixon on a business trip. He hitched a team to a bob sled and made the trip, it being his first ride to Dixon in this manner for some years.

Terse Items of News Gathered in Dixon During Day

PARTICULAR INTEREST

Dixonites have an especial interest in the series of articles on organized crime, appearing this week in the Telegraph, in that State Highway Officer Hal Roberts of this city has been associated in many recent investigations with Alexander Jamie, the author.

FATHER IS DEAD

Miss Georgia Sill, chief operator at the Dixon Telephone Co., received word of the death of her father in Clinton, Ill., this morning. Mr. Sill, who has been critically ill for some weeks, passed away at the home of a daughter, Mrs. Noah Stivers in Clinton.

STATE WARD DEAD

Mrs. Henrietta Hepp, aged 44, Dixon state hospital patient, was found dead in her bed at the institution north of the city this morning. The body was taken to the Staples mortuary where Coroner Frank M. Banker is conducting an inquest this afternoon.

MALONE TO SPEAK

William H. Malone, former chairman of the State Tax Commission, a candidate for the Republican nomination for the governorship, will present his platform and plea to voters of this community in an address at the Moose hall in this city Wednesday evening at 8 o'clock.

DISCUSSED MILK

E. J. Huffer of Springfield read an interesting paper before the Dixon Kiwanis club at noon today on the subject, "Safe Milk." At the close of the meeting the speaker met with members of the city council to discuss the proposed milk ordinance which is to be submitted for passage by the city commission.

TO FINISH BUILDING

Because of the deep snow, workers on Cantrell tabernacle were unable to finish the building today and it was stated it will probably require all of tomorrow to complete it. The committee in charge requests that all the laborers return tomorrow at 8 A. M. The ladies will again serve dinner at Grace church for the laborers.

Reformer Given Sentence Today

Chicago, March 22—(UP)—Daniel Gilday, veteran reformer, was sentenced today by Judge John Frystalski to serve from one to four years in the state penitentiary at Joliet for the shooting of Herman Knol, 19.

Knol recovered from his wound and was the principal witness against Gilday at the trial, at which the reformer admitted he had been drinking on the night of the shooting. Knol said he and a friend attempted to assist Gilday home and the latter shot him.

Gilday trembled slightly when the sentence was pronounced. His attorney, Scott Stewart, filed formal notice with the court that the defendant would take advantage of the 60 days allowed for preparation of a bill of exceptions.

Senator Capper Hits At Bankers

Washington, March 22—(AP)—The federal government was charged today by Senator Capper (R., Kan.), with aiding, at least by implication, the exploitation of the American investing public through the sale of worthless foreign securities by bankers "gone mad with the lust for profits."

Reviewing the results of the Senate's foreign bond investigation in a speech over the Columbia Broadcasting System, Capper said the American investing public "was entitled to protection from its State Department."

Capper said the international bankers had "ignored every sound principle of banking and even of ethical bond salesmanship, to unload upon American investors billions of worthless foreign securities for the sake of profits."</

LILIES
Tessa Sweazy Webb
In the balmy springtime season
There's a fragrance in the air.
And a strange pervading sweetness
Sends its gladness everywhere.
Lilies with their spotless beauty,
Flaunting in the golden light
Emulate a lasting incense
From their petals snowy white.

Other blossoms are enchanting
With their strange seductive joy.
Something in their magic perfume
Passing years cannot destroy.
There's the jonquil and narcissus
There are tulips red and fair
But these cannot hold the beauty
Of the lily white and rare.

Balmy April with its lilies
That create the springtime charm;
Nothing in the word of nature
Seems so free from guile and harm.
As I look upon the lily
To my mind it does impart
Purity from every petal
And a virtue from its heart.

Annual Mid-Winter Picnic Was Enjoyed

The members of the Palmyra Mutual Air society and their families held their annual mid-winter picnic Saturday, March 19th, in the basement of the Sugar Grove church. The attendance was not as large as usual owing to the weather.

Help to Balance Meals During Lent

Some relinquish meat during Lent, and some give up desserts, and yet the harried home-maker must balance her meals and see that her charges are fed their protein, their iron, and other minerals, and that they obtain their required share of foods that make body-energy.

How to do it! One way is to include dried fruit in the menu. Those concentrated fruits especially sun-dried dates, contain the valuable minerals and supply some of the protein a meatless diet lacks. Because of their high content of fruit sugar, they are excellent sources of body energy. A trio of easy fruit receipts will serve as suggestions to the mother who believes that a word to the wise is more than enough.

Energy Salad
2-3 pkg. pitted dates, 1-2 pkg. cream cheese, 1-2 cup peanut butter, 1-4 cup cream or rich milk, French or mayonnaise dressing and lettuce. Rub cream cheese and peanut butter separately to a paste with the cream. Stuff half of the dates each mixture. Arrange the cheese and peanut butter stuffed dates alternately in a circle on a bed of lettuce leaves. Serve with French or mayonnaise dressing, 6 servings.

Two Fruit Sandwiches
1 pkg. pasteurized dates, 1-2 cup nut meats, 1 large or 2 small bananas, 1 teaspoon grated orange rind, 1-8 teaspoon salt, 24 slices bread and 1-4 cup softened butter. Slice dates, chop nuts, rind, salt, dates and nuts. Mix thoroughly. Spread the paste on slices of lightly buttered bread. Put slices together in pairs. 12 large sandwiches.

Lenten Relish
3 cups shredded cabbage, 1 cup crushed pineapple (canned), 12 pasteurized dates, salad dressing, and lettuce. Soak cabbage in cold water until crisp. Drain thoroughly. Add pineapple, dates (sliced) and add to French dressing or mayonnaise. Toss with two forks until well mixed. Serve in a cup of lettuce leaves as a relish. 6 servings.

ABOUT SCOLDING

When one of my girls was very small she would say suddenly, "Don't talk about it," if either her father or I were correcting her. "Please," she would beg, "don't talk about it."

And it wasn't long before we learned to speak to her very gently and realized that once was enough. We stopped haranguing and rubbing it in.

Since those years I have thought a lot about that expression of hers. It was natural that she hated to be reproved, but now that I have learned so many things I see more clearly and there was more behind her protest than that.

They Lack the Words
Children cannot express themselves. They cannot tell us why they do certain things. There is always a reason, and to them a good one, why they jump into trouble. If they were older they could defend themselves with words, tell us what they were thinking about—say, when they climbed a fence and tore a dress, or stayed out at meal time beyond call or search. They could say they forgot, or were too excited to think in time, or were in search of something they had lost, or that someone else had lured them away.

These examples do not cover the case, of course, for children do a thousand things from a thousand motives. All that we parents see is the act itself. Besides if they do attempt to explain we jump to the conclusion that they are trying to set up an alibi or to put the blame on someone else. We look upon explanations too often as an imperious and don't give them a fair chance at self-defense. If we treated grown-ups as arbitrarily as we do children they wouldn't stand it for a minute.

We give every grown-up a chance at defense because he can talk, can tell us reasons and state his case. Children try to argue, and we say, "That will do!" None of your back talk. You did so and so. Now listen while I tell you a few things," or words to that effect.

If She Could Say It—
What my little girl meant, besides a natural shrinking from reproof, was this, I have figured out: "I can't tell you all about it, you wouldn't understand anyway, mother. And when you go on and on it is all too one-sided, I resent it because half the time I don't know when I am doing right or not. Or I do things and then think too late. I didn't mean to be what you call 'naughty.' So the best way is to stop talking about it for I just get all upset and nervous. I love you better when you don't talk."

Scolding has no place in the world I have learned. I never was a bona fide scolder, but now I scold not at all. Constructive guidance and understanding have taken their place. For a parent to express a terse opinion favorable or unfavorable so as to let a child know you approve or disapprove is not scolding, but a very little goes a great way. Little children need it not at all. The

BACK TO PROSPERITY.

The utility interests may not want Len Small back as governor of Illinois. The paving brick interests may not be so enthusiastic about the former governor. The interest-controlled press and the political group wishes to keep its grip on the state through the maintenance of its dynasty does not want Len Small for governor, but the people do. The man on the street out of a job, the voters in stores, offices and factories, they want Len Small back in the governor's chair. The proprietors of businesses, the merchants and the manufacturers, they want him back because they know from experience that the governmental policies Len Small advocates and carries out will create prosperity.

The farmer of this state, knowing that Len Small has been a farmer all his life and is now farming seven hundred acres of land, want Small for Governor because he knows the farmers' problems and hardships and will use all his influence to benefit the farmer.

Every taxpayer should want ex-Governor Small back in the executive chair because he keeps tax rates down.

Let us get back to normalcy and prosperity with Len Small. His slogan is no empty promise. He has been under fire and has given a splendid account of himself. His record of eight years in the governor's chair stands out as the most prosperous and most progressive and most successful period in the history of Illinois. He is the only candidate on the ballot who has had experience as governor of the state and everyone knows that his administration was a record-breaking success. What possible reason could any voter give for supporting any other candidate?

Certain Chicago newspapers have painted a devilish picture of Len Small. They could not control him so they have unscrupulously used every foul and indecent method to poison the public mind against him. Many good intentioned readers have been influenced by the lies that have been told, but many of them are beginning to realize that they had been falsely led astray and they are anxious to correct that mistake at the coming election.

The truth of the matter is that Len Small, besides being a splendid executive, is a kindly, Christian man of the highest character and of the most moral personal habits. Illinois needs Len Small in the Governor's chair again. Go in to the Republican primary April 12th and vote for him.

OVER THE HORIZON.

Far up in the Himalayas, several Englishmen are getting ready to climb the hitherto unscaled peak of Mount Nanga Parbat, which rises some 26,000 feet above sea level and which has rocky sides that run almost straight up and down.

On top of this mountain, say the Kashmiri shepherds who live along the lower slopes, there is a marvelous crystal palace. No one has ever been up there to find out, but a legend dating back far into the past tells about it, and the shepherds have always been willing to take it on faith.

The Englishmen probably do not take any stock in this palace. They are going to make the climb in the interests of pure science, or pure sport, or something of the kind, and if they find nothing on top but snow and ice and bare rock and a gorgeous view of the surrounding country they will be perfectly happy—providing, of course that they ever get there.

We stay-at-homes may wonder, though, why on earth any man should want to leave his comfortable home and risk his neck climbing a barren mountain in the interior of Asia. There is not, as the saying goes, any percentage in it. What is the sense of it?

The answer, of course, is that there is seldom any tangible reward for the explorer, and there is seldom any very obvious, common sense reason for his journeyings. But there is something in the human heart that gets uncontrollably restless when a new vista opens before the eyes—a desire to go where no one else has ever gone, an imperative yearning to see what lies beyond the next hill. The desire is as old as the race, and it probably will last until the last rocket car has explored the last distant planet.

It sent the old Phoenicians out through the straits of Gibraltar in their flimsy galleys, thousands of years ago, and it sent trappers and adventurers out to the Rocky Mountains within the last century. It sent Marco Polo to China and it sent Amundsen to the South Pole. It is irrational and compelling, and none of us is wholly free from it.

The doughnut man was all tired out. Said Duncy, "He's a real good scout for walking, like he did for us, but now let's him rest. Let's tuck him in the cupboard where he'll sleep. It's nice and quiet there."

"All right," replied the baker man. "I guess that that is best."

So, Mr. Doughnut soon was sound asleep. The Tines gathered round the baker and he said to them, "I want some help from you. You Tines can lend a hand and, if you do, it will be grand. I think that you all will have fun in what I'm going to do."

"You see I've baked fine things galore and I must take them to a store, or sell them to the little folks who live not far from here. They all get hungry as can be and how they always welcome me! To see my dandy baked goods fills their little hearts with cheer."

"So, come lads, fill my baskets high. Don't pass a single baked thing by. Then we will load my wagon and I'll soon be on my way." And then he added, "Sakes alive! I even may let you Tines drive." Of course this pleased the Tines and they loudly cried, "Hurray!"

When all the baked things were brought out, the Tines heard the baker shout, "Oh, thank you, lads! You've done just fine. And now, please follow me. The bakery wagon, we must get. Gee, you'll all like it, I will bet! It's different than you've ever seen, and cute as it can be."

They shortly found that he was right. The wagon really was a sight. 'Twas made just like a loaf of bread and towered in the air. Said Duncy, "In the seat we'll sit and we will take turns driving it." The baker smiled and said, "All right. Your plan, to me, sounds fair."

"The Darkness Is Past, and the True Light Now Shines"

Prayer:

(Read I John 2:1-10.)

The pathway of Radiance lies on the road with Christ. This is the basic truth and this is the ultimate fact. It is the primary axiom of the spiritually illumined soul. It is the "given" from all conclusions must be derived. Questions regarding, private conduct, social relationship, economic or political practices, scientific procedure and aesthetic enjoyment, must be answered by the truly enlightened mind from this standpoint. The pathway of Radiance lies on the road with Christ. If the world is still darkened by hatred, and blinded by lust and greed, this is true only because the world persists learn to take His road and to go with Him, they grow accustomed to a life of inward joy and outward capacity for practical helpfulness. Even when their journey takes them to the Calvary of suffering, the Light does not forsake them. No way is dark for those who go with Christ.

Prayer:

Help us, O Christ, to walk in Thy way. Lead us by the Light of Thy eternal glory. Abide with us when our feet grow weary, and be patient when our steps are slow. Open our eyes to the vistas that lie beyond all valleys of shadow, and to the ranges which beckon us on through

A BOOK A DAY

BY BRUCE CATTON

TAKING A STROLL UNDER THE SEA

William Beebe, when he wants a change of scene, puts on a bathing suit and a diver's helmet and goes down for a stroll on the bottom of the sea.

He carries with him a sort of combination bow and arrow and slingshot arrangement and when he comes to the surface he usually has a collection of slain fish to take home and brood over. (He never seems to eat them.) In addition, he catches some fish alive in a net and put them in an aquarium.

He tells about this sort of thing, very delightfully, in "Nonsuch Land of Water." Illustrated with striking photographs, it makes an unusually entertaining book.

Nonsuch is a tiny island in a bay at one end of Bermuda. Mr. Beebe established a marine laboratory there and spent two or three years studying the life of the adjacent sea and shore.

Just offshore there was a submerged island, where he spent hours on more or less intimate terms with the fish. He had a launch, and for diversion he would sail about in it shooting flying fish with a shotgun—marvelous sport, he assures us. He got intimate with a pet flounder in a glass tank, nearly lost his life investigating shellfish in the breakers, caught a nine-foot shark with a hook and line and learned how crabs fight after they have lost their claws.

As you can see, there is a wide variety of stuff in this book—and it's all interesting. On top of it all, Mr. Beebe has a mind that is forever being provoked to soliloquizing on the cosmos, and he can start out to describe some migrating birds and end by speculating on the mystery of life and death.

"Nonsuch" is a fine book. Don't miss it.

Former Dixon Lady Writes Of Farmers Condition In S. Dak.

Some idea of the plight in which farmers of South Dakota find themselves, is reflected in the following excerpt from a letter from Mrs. R. P. Hagman of Huron, S. D. to her mother, Mrs. Fred Adolph of route 8, Dixon:

We surely have had lots of snow this winter. Lots of ice, too. The snow would melt and then freeze. The farmers didn't begin to have enough feed for their stock this winter and no money to buy it with, so thousands of cattle and horses, sheep and pigs starved to death. It has been just terrible.

A man close to Huron lost all of his horses. He brought in nine hides the other day and got 90 cents apiece for them. Another farmer has 80 head of cattle and all starved except one cow. I could just tell you case after case like these two. The farmers around here and nearly all of South Dakota last summer never got a bit of grain or corn off their farms. It all burned up or the grasshoppers took it so they had absolutely no feed to start with. A few farmers around Tulare had some feed but we had no crops at all around Huron.

They have been cutting up Prussian thistles and feeding the stock, and the ones that did have a little grain and corn—it was mostly stalk and had no food value in it.

A lot borrowed money from the government but the government had to have a mortgage on something, so many couldn't get a loan because they had nothing to mortgage. This is the worst condition South Dakota has ever been in, I guess. They have always had enough stock for the stock.

VAILE AND O'MALLEY

Sidelights In News In Capital Of United States

By The United Press

Washington, March 22 — Every school boy knows that Demosthenes used to make speeches to the ocean, with his mouth full of pebbles, so that he would learn to speak distinctly and loudly enough to be heard above the roar of the breakers.

Senator Borah follows something of the same plan, although he does not use pebbles, and he has no impediment in his speech as did Demosthenes. But he practices his oratory in advance, trying out both voice and gestures.

When Borah plans an important speech, if the weather is not good he goes to the office allotted him as chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations committee. He locks the door and throws the windows wide open, so there'll be plenty of good air for his lungs. Alone in the big room he shouts his speech, perfecting words and gestures. He walks up and down the office shouts and whispers. When he is satisfied with the effect, he goes onto the Senate floor. Then, at the psychological moment, he treats the Senate to oratory such as only a few of his colleagues can approach.

If the weather is good, Borah may decide to combine practice with pleasure. He orders up his horse and rides to Rock Creek park.

There on the pleasant bridle path, as his mount canter along beside the rippling brooks, he delivers his oration with only himself and his horse to hear.

Borah, when alone, reads aloud to himself. He feels that it tones up his voice, and that he gets much more out of the reading.

Charles G. Dawes, President of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, leaving the White House, was commended by a friend.

"You are doing fine work," he was told.

"Yes," replied Dawes. "People say fine things about us now. But a campaign speech in 1928 was exclusion of the world. Every one will be spitting on us."

In the lobby of the Department of Commerce a pilot's license has been placed on display in a glass case. It authorizes Samuel Clemens to navigate the Mississippi river "to and from St. Louis." The Steamboat Inspection Service placed the license on display because it is proud to have licensed Clemens (Mark Twain) back in 1859.

Nearby the patent office is showing a model of an electric machine patented by Thomas A. Edison in 1879.

Senator Frederick Collin Walcott, Rep., Conn., reputed to be President Hoover's closest Senate confidante, is so forgetful he invited Ethel Barrymore, Alice Roosevelt Longworth and others to lunch—then forgot to appear himself.

The incident, which happened two weeks ago but is not generally known, came during the Barrymore appearance here in her play "The School for Scandal." The luncheon was at the Senate restaurant.

That lapse of memory has helped the gentleman from Connecticut clinch the title as the Senate's most forgetful man.

Once he gave a dinner for a Polish dignitary in New York. Sixteen distinguished guests assembled but no host. He was found finally at his desk in Hartford, Conn. Too late to reach his own party.

But Walcott never forgets his friendship with Mr. Hoover. His administration assigned him the valuable privilege of sponsoring the Reconstruction Finance Corporation bill. He is the unqualified White and currency committee, although House spokesman in the banking majority.

Walcott is a member of the Senate, he called bear raiders punished. He called Walcott, not Watson, to his office.

The Connecticut Senator used to be an investment banker himself, as a partner in Boneright and Co., New York. He was an international banker too, and so highly did the Poles think of his ability that when Ignace Jan Paderewski turned from his piano to the premiership of Poland after the War he asked Walcott to be his Minister of Finance.

They compromised with Walcott's acceptance of a Polish decoration.

Walcott is 63. After Yale and a year of foreign travel he was in the New York textile mills belonging to his father. In 1907 he became an investment banker, exploring the South American hinterland at odd moments. He has been married twice and is a widower. He retired from banking in 1916 to tour Belgium and Poland for the Rockefeller Foundation, and he met Mr. Hoover there.

The Senator is proud of the fact that he was one of the first invited by Mr. Hoover to join the food administration in 1917. In 1922 he retired from active business and soon went into politics via the Connecticut state legislature.

It is related that his senatorial year from now we will be the cupisively a 25 minute account of his friendship with Mr. Hoover, then the Republican nominee. It was a speech that satisfied and Walcott was elected despite the fact that he had forgotten to attend a luncheon given for the purpose of getting him acquainted with the local leaders of half of the state.

BRITISH DRIVEN BACK

On March 22, 1918, the great German drive against the hard-pressed British forces continued with tremendous energy.

German officials claimed that more than 16,000 prisoners had been taken and said that one British corps had been practically annihilated.

British observers admitted the extreme gravity of the situation, but declared that the British lines on the whole were holding remarkably well.

More cheering news came from Palestine, where British troops advanced more than nine miles after sharp fighting with rapidly thinning Turkish forces.

American troops stormed German first and second line trenches east of Lunenburg after a sharp encounter with Germans trapped by the American barrage.

Paw Paw — The Sunshine Circle met at the home of Mrs. Harry Town on Friday. A lovely 1 o'clock dinner was served all in the green, colorful scheme of March. Green and white carnations adorned the tables and the menu was most appetizing. A fine play of Irish origin was splendidly given and proved very entertaining. The following were guests: Mrs. Harold Miller of Earlville, Mrs. Edward Graham and son and Mrs. Theron Tesson of Chicago, Mrs. Mielie Betz and friend, Miss Mildred French of Fairbury and Mrs. Grace Mills, all the members being present except three.

Mildred French went to Harvard on Sunday where he will visit friends for a week.

Robert and Richard Gay of Harvard were week-end visitors at the Herman Vance home.

Mrs. Milo Betz and friend, Miss Mildred French, were week-end visitors with her sister, Mrs. Harry Town and family.

Guard Of Kidnaped Boy Is Sentenced
Warren, O., Mar. 22—(UP)—John Demarco of Youngstown, alleged racketeer Monday was sentenced to from one to 20 years in prison on a charge of harboring a kidnaped boy in connection with the abduction of James DeJure, 12, Niles, O., school boy.

A plea of guilty was entered for Demarco when County prosecutor G. H. Birrell agreed to withdraw a second indictment charging the man with kidnaping for extortion, and carrying a possible life sentence.

The guilty plea to the lesser charge was offered after Dowell Hargraves, found with Demarco, standing guard over James in an abandoned house near Youngstown, was given a life term.

Hargraves was identified as one of the actual kidnapers. Demarco was accused as a participant in the kidnaping plot and as a guard over the abducted boy.

How Sea Swirled Through Wrecked Liner

Swirling waves danced through the lounge of the stricken Canadian liner Prince David, where only a few hours before eighty passengers of the ship had been spending gay moments. This remarkable picture was taken while the vessel was hard and fast upon a reef off Bermuda. Passengers and crew took to lifeboats and were transferred in safety to another steamer.

HINTS for HOME GARDENERS

This is the tenth of a series of articles on flower gardening written especially for NEA Service and The Dixon Evening Telegraph.

BY DR. WM. A. TAYLOR
Chief, Bureau of Plant Industry, U. S. Department of Agriculture

In many flower gardens a good share of the water applied is wasted. If the soil is well prepared, flowering plants, with only a few exceptions, do not require daily soakings.

A flower bed should have enough of the qualities of a sponge so when it is well soaked it will remain moist for from two or three days to a week, or more. Even if the soil is not properly conditioned and bakes and cakes after each watering, a daily sprinkling is not the best management. In this case it is better to concentrate the day's sprinkling on a single bed or part of a bed and wet it thoroughly.

For most garden watering it is more effective to arrange things so it is possible to let the hose run a stream and devote the time otherwise used in holding the nozzle to cultivation of the surface and the creation of a soil mulch that will check evaporation and let air into the soil.

Rain Not Always Ample
Gentle rain falling from the heavens is not always the ideal moisture supply. The flower gardener, as well as the farmer, has reason to speak approvingly of a "good, soaking rain." The gardener, last, as a rule, trying to follow nature in growing flowers. He is trying to improve conditions and get finer blooms and more of them than would naturally grow in his grounds. He can turn with profit to the methods developed by farmers in irrigated districts who have demonstrated that in the driest regions intelligent control of the moisture supply will produce crops superior to those in the regions most favored in rainfall.

Intelligent control of moisture does not necessarily mean construction of ditches and dams, and the flooding of plots, though modifications in some instances may prove helpful in some instances. In a thoroughly prepared garden plot in which the subsoil is full of absorptive humus, it may not be necessary to apply much water except in a few spots where it will soak in and permeate all the soil.

In such a bed it may prove feasible to sub-irrigate by the simple means of inserting a drain tile vertically to reach from the surface of the bed to subsoil. Then, if the bed has been cultivated recently and has a satisfactory dust mulch and few weeds, the watering of the garden may consist only in permitting a small stream of water to run into the tile until rapid absorption ceases. A soaking in this style may suffice for a week, and it will not even disturb the dust mulch.

Roots Go Deep for Moisture
When the principal supply of moisture is well below the surface, plants tend to send their roots deep. Then they are well anchored and have better connection with a more liberal food supply. With the exception of a few plants that do better in scanty soil and do not require much moisture, this system of watering by soaking is more satisfactory than sprinkling, and also save time, energy, and water.

Conserving the water supply also helps. Breaking the crust and mulching with fine soil checks evaporation. Mulching with granulated peat, or with clippings from the lawn, helps to conserve moisture and to prevent the formation of a crust, and also helps to keep the ground cooler on hot days.

If the ground has not been thoroughly prepared it is even more essential that watering should be in the form of thorough soakings as often as required, and not daily sprinklings on crusted earth that reach only the upper inch or two of soil.

Discussion Of Unsolved Farm Problems; Cures

By JOHN A. SIMPSON
(President National Farm Union.)

For more than two years conditions have continued to grow worse in this country. The year 1931 saw more bank failures, more bankruptcies of business institutions and more foreclosures than any other year in the history of our nation.

Bank failures for the first twenty three days of 1932 far exceed those for the same period of 1931. A year ago there were five million unemployed. The number has increased until today eight million are asking for work. In 1931 prices of farm products reached the lowest level in the history of the world.

The Farmers Union of this nation offers the only real remedy, and it is the same we offered a year ago. With conditions even worse than a year before and with no attempt on the part of those in control of our government to adopt our remedy we, in our national convention, restated the same program which we had adopted in the fall of 1930. Every remedy tried has proven a dismal failure.

First came the Farm Board. No more complete failure of a Department of Government was ever recorded in the 150 years of the existence of this nation than the failure of the Farm Board. They took charge of the marketing of wheat in the fall of 1929, and the price went down and the general trend has been downward ever since.

They took charge of the marketing of cotton in the fall of 1929, and the minute they laid their hands on that commodity the price slumped and continued to decline through the months since that time. They laid their hands on dairy and poultry products, and it was a withering and blighting touch so far as the price of those products was concerned. They gambled in our products on a scale never known before.

They played both sides, but most of the time they were bears on the market. They deliberately used taxpayer's money through their wheat set-up in an effort to control farm organizations. No farm organization could borrow money from the Board without bowing the head and bending the knee.

All farm organizations that refused to do this were refused the benefits of the cheap money which the Farm Board had to loan. I hold before me the Government report of the hearings before the Committee on Agriculture of the United States Senate held here in Washington November 24, 25, 26, 27 and 28, 1931. On page 287 of this Government report, Mr. Creekmore, head of the Farm Board's cotton set-up admitted that for more than a year he has been drawing a salary of $75,000 a year.

He has many assistants under him drawing salaries up to as high as $35,000 a year, and the saddest part of this information is that these extortionate salaries come out of the cotton farmers' 5 cents a pound cotton.

In order that you may get a realization of what such a salary means to the cotton farmers of the South I call your attention to the fact that the average cotton family produces ten bales of cotton per year. At the present price of cotton, it requires 2,500 bales of cotton to pay Mr. Creekmore's salary for one year which means that it takes 250 cotton farmers, their wives and children to produce enough cotton to sell for enough money at the present price to pay his salary.

For Mr. Creekmore to live in the luxury of a $75,000 a year salary for several months in the spring of a year must go into the fields with a hoe and chop cotton, and again when frost time comes these same little boys and girls must go into the fields again, up and down the rows, little fingers gathering the locks of cotton, many times barefooted and fingers bleeding on cold mornings. All of this is necessary in order that Mr. Creekmore may have $75,000 a year.

I say to you, the Farm Board is a failure so far as cotton farmers are concerned. Any system, or policy, that develops a $75,000 salary as a burden on 5-cent cotton is a complete failure.

The Farm Board established a wheat set-up and made a country preacher president of the set-up at a salary of $15,000 a year with an unlimited expense account. They placed a Mr. Milnor on the pay-roll as an expert manager at a salary of $50,000 a year, with a number of assistants with salaries ranging from $10,000 to $35,000.

bushels of wheat would be four train loads, fifty cars to the train and 1,000 bushels of wheat to each car.

I say to you farmers listening in, that the Farm Board is a failure when it establishes institutions that pay such extortionate salaries and then has no more influence on the market than to let wheat go to 25 cents a bushel. If agriculture is to be saved, we will have to change policies. You cannot save it with such a system as the Farm Board adopted.

Eleven months ago over a National Broadcasting hook-up, I broadcasted out of Chicago and told the story of the Farm Board selling three and one-half million bushels of wheat on November 22, 1930, and stated that Mr. Legge said before an executive session of the Senate Agricultural Committee that they sold the three and one-half million bushels because the price of wheat had started to rise and they did not want to see it go up. They wanted it to remain so cheap that it would be used to feed to hogs instead of corn.

When I gave this statement to the press, Mr. Legge denied that they had done this. I had a letter written by a United States Senator that Mr. Legge had so testified; but in the hearings in November, 1931, Mr. Milnor, under severe cross-examination by Senator Elmer Thomas of Oklahoma, testified, and it will be found on page 252, that on November 22, 1930, they sold 3,375,000 bushels and that in three days they sold nearly 7,000,000 bushels; and he admitted it was done to keep the price from going higher.

I give you this in order that you may know that, in the controversy between Senator Thomas and Mr. Legge on the one side and Mr. Legge on the other, Senator Thomas and I were not the liars. The last advice which the Farm Board offered to the farmers of the nation came forth in the middle of summer of last year. I am sure it was their victory. It must have cost them many sleepless nights, brains on fire with the wonderful remedy which they offered. They delivered it to two million cotton farmers in the South, and it was for these farmers to destroy one-third of their property. The Farm Board said to plow under every third row! This was a most foolish proclamation on the part of the Farm Board. In it there was no guarantee that the price of cotton would go up after the farmers plowed under every third row; and it had in it advice that amounted to asking two million cotton farmers to commit a penitentiary offense, for practically all of the cotton was mortgaged, and it would be a penitentiary offense to destroy it.

In my Farmers Union work for sixteen years I have been called radical and even worse, but in my wildest moments I never asked a farmer to commit a penitentiary offense.

It is fair to say that either the Farm Board is no good or the Marketing Act is no good; and it is possible that both are no good.

Second: The President of the United States thought he had a remedy when he issued his famous proclamation on June 20, 1931, in which he said: "The American Government proposes the postponement during one year of all payments on inter-governmental debts. Or, more, not including obligations of governments held by private parties."

Poor, foolish Congressmen and Senators, led on by the misrepresentation of a big daily press financed by the international bankers, over the wires and through the mail, pledged their support to this un-American proposition. Many of them were not able to see that this was simply a trick of the international bankers, who in the last ten years have loaned more than seventeen billion dollars to foreign countries, to have Uncle Sam step in and let the international bankers and let the international bankers while Uncle Sam waited.

We loaned England money at 2 per cent interest. England re-loaned the money she borrowed of us to Germany at 8 per cent and Germany loaned it to Russia at 15 per cent interest. Some high finance.

I am here in Washington doing my best to represent the farmers of America before Congress, and I want to say to you that this is now going on as revealing the perfidy of the international bankers, even beyond the strongest accusations of a few of us who were sending out warnings a year ago. There is hardly any crime under the sun which these international bankers have not committed and practiced.

And they have all been done for money. The man who has a grievance against a fellow-man and commits murder, is much less a criminal than he who commits a murder for hire. These international bankers have committed their crimes for hire. In the first place they sold their fellow-men all over this country foreign bonds and securities at prices so much above what they paid for the same securities that one of the international bankers admitted before the Finance Committee hearing that they had made more than $14,000,000 in commissions.

I listened to one testify the other day who described every kind of

LEE COUNTY WAS THIRD IN DIST. CORN PRODUCTION

1931 Corn Crop In This County Was Valued At $2,044,200

Springfield, Ill. — (UP) — McLean led all other counties in Illinois corn production for 1931 with a total of 14,202,400 bushels, having an estimated value of $4,404,700, according to the annual state crop report, by counties, made public here today by A. J. Surratt, Federal and state agricultural statistician.

Total value of the Illinois corn crop for 1931, published several weeks ago, the report showed, was $920,142,000 as compared with $1,349,218,000 in 1930. Production in 1931 was 2,556,863,000 bushels as compared with 2,069,185,000 bushels.

crooked method of securing the confidence of their customers and then unloading on them securities which in a very short time dropped to less than one-half and sometimes one-tenth of what the customers paid for them. It mattered not to these international bankers whether the victims were men, widows or orphans. A widow's or orphan's commission looked just as good to them as a man's. They cared not whether unloading these securities on little country banks meant the closing of that bank with the untold suffering that follows such an incident in a small town.

Nearly a billion dollars of these bonds which they unloaded among their unsuspecting friends have defaulted in payment of both interest and principal, and another billion expected to default at next interest due date. In the line of crimes committed by these international bankers, they corrupted, debauched and bribed officials of foreign countries. In one South American country, the president and his son were convicted of accepting a bribe of $415,000 from one of these international bankers. It also developed that some of these loans were made on condition that individuals and concerns in this country would receive oil and other concessions. A member of the Cabinet is busy now trying to explain charges made against him.

This is a sordid story but a true one; and the saddest part is that these international bankers, in spite of all that has been revealed, are still the most powerful influence in Government. In the affairs in Washington we have a Government of international bankers, for the international bankers and by the international bankers. Every remedy that has a chance of passing, every remedy offered by the President of the United States, is based upon the consent of these international bankers.

JUDGE SMOKED 58,690 CIGARS

rapid gains than those fed the same way without forage as the hogs are more healthy and active. They have bigger appetites and consume a greater amount of feed than those shut up in small pens or dry lots. The full feeding of hogs on pasture will fit animals for market at a younger age than will most any other system of feeding.

If the pastures are infested with bad weeds or grubs, pasturing with hogs will help to get rid of these weeds. Hogs like the morning glory roots and if pastured without ringing will kill most of these and other bad weeds. In pastures infested with grubs the hogs will root up the pastures to get the grubs.

Odd shaped fields that are hard to work can be used for hog pastures and in this way they can be used. The cost of keeping the breeding herd can be partly lowered by the use of pasture. The boar and sows can make better use of forage than the younger pigs can, as the older hogs have a larger feed capacity and can handle a larger amount of coarser feed.

W.F. PRIEBE'S WEEKLY LETTER to POULTRY RAISERS

A farmer had brought a dozen chickens to town—this was down in Missouri—and the produce man weighed them and figured how much they would be and then counted out the money for the farmer.

He stood there and counted it over and didn't say anything and finally the buyer decided he must have made a mistake. "No, There is no mistake," said the farmer. "Only I was just thinking. Do you know I would have had to brought in a three hundred pound hog to get as much money as I got for these twelve chickens." And he put the money in his pocket and walked out—peased with the poultry business.

A person doesn't have to do much figuring to find out that sixty pounds of poultry is worth as much as two hundred pounds of pork. The price isn't the only thing in favor of poultry. When you are raising hogs you can not sell them until they reach a certain weight and then you have to sell them. So you might say that you are at the mercy of the market.

Chickens Are Same as Cash If you have to, you can turn chickens into cash any time after they weigh a pound and a half or two pounds.

I hope, of course, that you won't have to sell them until they weigh four or five pounds, because as I have said so many times, with all the cheap grain we have here in the Middle West, is pays to produce big chickens.

In the last few years I have seen farmers neglect other products because of low prices, but most every one is still "friendly" to poultry. I couldn't help noticing that as I talked with farmers in the last month or so.

I was invited to talk at the Farm and Home Week at Ames and at Urbana and at the Illinois Farmers' Institute and I never have seen people as interested in poultry as they are right now.

Produce Quality Poultry What pleases me especially is to find that they are interested not just in raising chickens, but in producing quality poultry and eggs.

That will do the industry and yourself as a poultry raiser, more good than anything else you can do. The fact that people have kept on eating poultry as a price of meat still not as low as the price of meat shows that they like chicken.

Give the public a good food product and they will pay a good price for it.

Sincerely yours
W. F. Priebe

Farm Radio Program

The importance to wheat and soybean producers of protein tests for wheat and oil tests for flaxseed will be pointed out by the Chief of the Bureau of Agricultural Economics, Nels A. Olsen, in a talk during the Department of Agriculture period of the National Farm and Home Week, to be broadcast Wednesday, Mar. 30, by a network of 47 associate NBC radio stations.

Other programs of the week will bring information from department economists, horticulturalists, home economists, animal husbandmen, for esters, and editors.

The Farm Board program of Friday, April 1, will include a review of progress made in cooperative marketing of fruits and vegetables.

The complete program for the week follows:
Monday, Mar. 28—"Farm Science News of the Week" Morse Salisbury, Chief of Radio Service, "March Dairy Markets," L. M. Davis, Bureau of Agricultural Economics; "March Poultry Markets," Roy C. Potts, Bureau of Agricultural Economics.

Tuesday, Mar. 29—"The Household Calendar," Ruth Van Deman, Bureau of Home Economics; "Meeting Progressive Garden Club," W. R. Beattie, Bureau of Plant Industry.

Wednesday, Mar. 30—"Summer Storage of Cured Meats," K. P. Watner, Bureau of Animal Industry; "Protein and Oil Tests in Modern Wheat and Flax Marketing," Nils A. Olsen, Chief of Agricultural Economics.

Thursday, Mar. 31—"Uncle Sam's Forest Rangers," Forest Service series.

Friday, April 1—"The Farm Business Library," M. S. Eisenhower, Director of Information; "The Week with the Farm Board," Edgar Markham, Federal Farm Board; Progress in Cooperative Marketing of Fruits and Vegetables," interview between Federal Farm Board and K. B. Gardner, Federal Farm Board.

The National Farm and Home Hour is broadcast from 11:30 A. M. to 12:30 P. M. Central Standard Time over WOC, KYW.

Farming Factors

HIGH TEMPERATURES HARMFUL TO CHICKS
By J. H. Bodwell

The temperature in which baby chicks are kept immediately following hatching time and during early days of brooding can have a very marked influence upon the way they will grow during the succeeding weeks.

Did you ever go into a mill in a big city where operators had to work in a high heat for a long time? If you have, you will have noticed how pale and emaciated these people look after a short time. This is due to the fact that the constant, high dry heat saps their vitality and they lose the moisture of the body which is absolutely necessary to good health.

The same principle applies to baby chicks that have been kept in the incubator too long, or that are kept in too hot a temperature after they have been put in the brooder stove. Probably this one factor alone is as great a cause of mortality in baby chicks as all others combined.

If you buy chicks from hatcheries that have allowed these chicks to dry off too long before they are sent to you, be sure that you give them a good laxative feed at once, which should be either in the form of some liquid milk or a starter that you know contains sufficient sucrose or a mixture that is high in dried buttermilk and skim milk. It is very essential that birds that have been kept under the above conditions should have a very succulent feed at the very beginning.

One should be very careful also to see that no grit or scratch feed is available for birds under such conditions. The digestive system is in poor condition in such chicks. This is due to the fact that when the chicks are hatched the yolk of the egg is still intact inside the body. Too much dry heat on the body also dries up the yolk into a hard lump which is almost impossible to soften in order that the chick may eliminate its waste properly the first part of its life.

The care that should be taken of baby chicks could be summed up as follows:
First: do not over-heat your baby chicks before taking them out of the incubator.

Second: do not have the brooder stove too hot. Many of the best poultrymen today feel that 90 to 95 degrees, with proper moisture, is near the right temperature. For a practical poultryman the best way is to gauge the temperature by close observation of the chicks with a reliable thermometer.

Third: feed the right starter with-out grains or grit for the first few weeks and have this starter sufficiently supplied with milk products to insure the proper succulence and cleansing of the digestive tract.

Weekly Review of Agriculture by Farmers Paper

Chicago, Ill. — (AP) — Financial conditions have improved to a degree that indicates a definite response to the campaign of "reflation" rather than merely incidental fluctuations, Prairie Farmer's market review said.

"Cattle market prospects are turning more favorable," the review continued. "Indications are that a start toward higher prices is not far ahead. Weekly average cost of killing steers at Chicago has held with-in extremely narrow limits for the last five weeks, a decline on the better grades being offset by rising prices on the lower grades. Whether this represents the winter bottom remains to be seen. Numbers of cattle on feed for the spring and summer market are considerably smaller than a year ago. Spring and easier credits probably will increase demand for feeder cattle, especially after fat cattle prices begin to show improvement."

"Hog prices have advanced about 20 per cent since the extreme low day of the winter, which is about the usual extent of the late winter or spring bulge. Prices probably will maintain part of this gain through April and early May to be followed by another low period in early summer. Receipts will average smaller than in the last three months and since hogs have been selling largely on a fresh pork basis, the smaller supply seems to assure continuation of a somewhat higher average level of prices than has prevailed since early winter."

"Receipts of lambs in the last four weeks have been extremely light. Recent price strength has been in response to a falling off in numbers. Wool prices have been barely steady."

"The wheat situation remains largely unchanged. Not until growing weather comes can the situation be correctly appraised, but thus far, there is no reason to expect winter abandonment to be greater than usual. Export demand appears to be improving, but other countries are more willing to sell than the United States, and are getting the trade. To get a larger share and reduce our stocks more rapidly, prices closer to the world price appear essential."

"The domestic cash corn situation appears weak, with the large farm stocks, narrow demand from feeders and industries and an ample visible supply. Farm supplies are the biggest since 1928."

"Butter consumption is running at about the same rate as a year ago and storage stocks are substantially smaller than last year. Prices seem likely to stabilize around the present level until the next storing season is a little closer at hand."

"Receipts of eggs at leading markets have not shown the usual seasonal increase during the last two months and are lagging far behind the corresponding season of a year ago. Consumption also is running lighter."

The Market Basket

By the Bureau of Home Economics, U. S. Department of Agriculture, and the Woman's Division of the President's Emergency Committee for Employment.

EGGS A GOOD FOOD BARGAIN

Not for twenty years have eggs cost so little at Eastertime as now. And spring is the season for quality—more good eggs come on the market in spring than at any other time of year. The egg market, therefore, says the Bureau of Home Economics of the U. S. Department of Agriculture, offers a good food bargain just now, exceptional food value for the money.

Eggs scrambled, soft-cooked, or fried, egg corn bread, muffin, sponge cake, omelets, salad dressings, custards—these nourishing dishes may have been out of reach of families on short rations, yet the people who could not afford eggs are probably these most in need of the nutrients that eggs contain. Now, perhaps is their chance.

Eggs are body-building foods. Egg yolk is fed to the baby to supplement his milk and a whole egg each day is a good rule to follow for little children. Like milk and meat, eggs are rich in protein. They contain also four of the vitamins—A, B, D, and G and are an excellent source of iron in a form very easily utilized in the body. Because of this iron, eggs are good blood builders. "They are more like milk in nutritive value than is any other food," says Dr. Hazel K. Stiebeling, food economist of the Bureau's staff. "They are richer than milk in iron but less in calcium. But eggs should not be considered a substitute for milk," she adds, "rather they should be considered a supplement to milk."

Every cook wants eggs to cook with. They add richness, flavor, delicacy, and improve the texture of almost any kind of dish. And, stored or fresh, eggs add food value in whatever mixture they are used.

It is a mistake to think there is no "how" to the cooking of eggs, says the Bureau of Home Economics. Even in the simple process of "boiling" eggs there is a right way and a wrong way. "The secret of success in cooking eggs, and dishes in which eggs predominate, is to cook slowly at moderate, even heat," says Miss Lucy M. Alexander and Mrs. Fanny Walker Yeatman, specialists on the bureau's staff who have prepared a leaflet on egg dishes. A boiling temperature toughens white of eggs, they say, therefore don't put eggs in boiling water if you want tender whites. Start them in cold water, enough to cover them, and heat the water gradually to simmering, but do not let it boil. For soft-cooked eggs, take the eggs from the fire as soon as the water simmers, cover it, and let it stand for a few minutes.

In almost countless ways, eggs can be used as the main dish of any meal. For variety, they can be served with different seasonings and sauces: poached on toast with tomato sauce, for example; hard-cooked with Spanish sauce; curried; baked with cheese; or creamed with ham and served on toast. Omelets may be varied by adding chopped onion, chopped ham or bacon, by folding in jelly, cheese, tomatoes, or almost any flavorful vegetable or meat. Or, for an economical dish, try a fondue made with a large proportion of eggs and enough cheese to flavor. Another good variation is poached eggs served on savory rice. Baked custard with caramel sauce.

OGLE HOLSTEINS TOOK LEAD FOR STATE-WIDE TEST

Lee County Holsteins Also Show Well In State Reports

Urbana, Ill., March 22 — (AP) — A herd of nine purebred Holstein cows owned by J. W. Hemmingsway, Oregon, took the lead in state butterfat production last month when it outyielded 1,102 other herds being put to test in 49 dairy herd improvement associations, the monthly honor roll of herds and associations revealed today. C. S. Rhode, dairy extension specialist of the College of Agriculture, University of Illinois, has charge of the tests.

The Ogle county Holsteins hung up a record of 56.2 pounds of butterfat each to establish a safe lead over the second-place herd of 13 Jerseys owned by C. J. McCord, Newton, that averaged 48.6 pounds of butterfat each.

State honors among the association went to the Winnebago No. 3 organization when the 287 cows in its 18 herds averaged 31.9 pounds of butterfat each during the month. Twenty associations succeeded in beating the state average for the month when the cows in them averaged more than 26.33 pounds of butterfat each.

Owners of the ten highest producing herds for the month, together with the average butterfat production a cow, were:

J. W. Hemmingsway, Oregon, 56.2 pounds of butterfat; C. J. McCord, Newton, 48.6 pounds; John G. Busboom, Gifford, 47.8 pounds; C. W. Guthrie, Charleston, 47.7 pounds; Curtis Plum & Son, Walnut, 44.6 pounds; Earl Kincaid, Athens, 44.2 pounds; George Van Loh & Son, Valleyville, 44.1 pounds; Fred Casper, Highland, 44 pounds; C. C. Buckaloo, Dixon, 43.9 pounds; L. A. Larson & Sons, Davis, 43.6 pounds; and J. J. Masching, Eminence, 43.1 pounds.

The ten high associations for the month together with the tester and the average butterfat production a cow, were:

Winnebago No. 3, Paul Brangenberger, 31.9 pounds; Moultrie, P. J. Smith, 30.6 pounds; Lee, Kenneth Albrecht, 29.7 pounds; Champagne, Angus Taylor, 28.8 pounds; Montgomery-Macoupin, Carl Wilson, 28.5 pounds; Tazewell No. 2, James C. Hoyt, 28.4 pounds; Ogle, Raymond Baker, 28.2 pounds; McLean No. 2, Archie Blakeley, 28.2 pounds; Wabash Valley, Ward Harris, 28.2 pounds; and Macoupin-Madison, H. E. Taube, 28 pounds.

PIRATES PUZZLE TO OBSERVERS IN TRAINING QUARTERS

Many Question Whether Gibson's Outfit In Race Will Click

San Francisco, Mar. 22.—(AP)—The Pittsburgh Pirates, once one of "the Teams" to beat for the National League flag, but more recently fallen by the wayside, will take the field this season as doubtful contenders.

At third base and in center field, Pittsburgh is fortified. Harold "Pie" Traynor is still rated as the best third sacker in baseball. Lloyd Waner will do until another fly chaser comes along.

But around these two stars is built a club that is a pre-season puzzle. It may or may not click.

George Gibson, making his second debut as manager of the Pirates, is frankly concerned with the keystone combination of his infield unit. Tommy Thevenow, shortstop, is a crack fielder, but dismally weak at the plate. In addition, he is nursing a weak foot, broken last season. Vaughn, a recent acquisition, is described as "a great prospect" by Manager Gibson, he has shown a lack of stability.

Two youngsters who had some experience at the position last season are battling for second base, with Tony Piet holding the edge over Howard Grosskiss at the present. Gus Suhr, with plenty of experience, has first base sewed up. Gibson says his hitting, poor last year, has improved.

Waner Unimproved
Paul Waner, elder brother of Lloyd, will patrol right field as usual, but he does not impress the observers now as he did when he broke in a few seasons ago and topped the league in batting.

The left field berth is open with Adam Comorosky. Forest Jensen and Gus Dugas and Dave Barbee in the running.

Comorosky has shown a tendency to become an "on and off" performer. Jensen, also a holdover, is not a consistent hitter. Dugas, recalled from Kansas City where he hit over 400, may win himself a steady job if he can continue to club the ball. Barbee, a slugger, drafted from the Coast League, has not had much chance yet to show his ability.

Gibson managed the Pirates before, in 1920-21 and part of '22, but before that he was a peppery catcher for the team, from 1905 to 1916. As a member of the behind-the-plate fraternity, Gibson says he is satisfied with his catching staff.

It includes Hal Finney, Earl A. Grace, holdovers, and Bill Brenzel, rookie purchased from the San Francisco Missions.

Pittsburgh's pitching staff is now manned entirely by veteran Gibson thinks they will stand up. He also expects some help from a couple of youngsters, Ray Kremer, Larry A. French, Ervin Brame, Steve Swetonic, Glenn Spencer, Charlie Wood and Henry Meine are holdovers; with Meine in the hole of "holdout" at present. Hoyis, Niggeling, Swift and Biven are youngsters who have shown promise.

SPORT BRIEFS

Iowa City, Ia., Mar. 22.—(AP)—With its major problem, that of hiring a head football coach, disposed of in the signing of Ozzie Solem, the University of Iowa Athletic Board today turned to selection of a group of coaching assistants.

Solem officially transferred his allegiance from Drake University to Iowa yesterday when he signed a three-year contract at a meeting of the Athletic Board.

Evanston, Ill., Mar. 22.—(AP)—Stanford and Northwestern tonight will engage in a dual swimming meet, as the warmup for the National Collegiate championships at the University of Michigan next week.

Stanford has five men entered in the national title meet, including Austin Clapp, National A. A. U. 500 yard champion and national collegiate 220 yard titleholder.

Tennis:
New York, Mar. 22.—(AP)—With no better than a seven break in the first two singles matches of the international team competition with France, the United States hoped to gain a perhaps decisive edge tonight by winning the doubles.

Representing America in the doubles will be the national indoor champions, George Lott and John Van Ryn. Franse will call upon Jean Borotra and Christian Boususs. Boususs bowed to the New York American indoor champion, Gregory Mangin of Newark, 7-9, 6-4, 6-3, 6-4. In the opening engagement last night, but Borotra came through with a brilliant victory over Frank Shields, 6-8, 6-1, 6-3, 6-2.

Detroit, Mar. 22.—(AP)—A pair of Philadelphia Irishmen who celebrated St. Patrick's Day at Buffalo last year by rolling the 1,316 which won the American Bowling Congress doubles championship, are attempting to shatter a tenpin tradition today.

Only once in the 31-year history of the A. B. C. has a championship been successfully defended. Back in 1915, the Barry-Kettlers of Chicago annexed the team title with a 2,907 total. The following year the same lineup, rolling as the Commodore Barrys, finished in front with a 2,905 score.

None of the other titles, doubles, singles of all-events, ever was retained a second year.

Charley Reilly and Eddie Rafferty, the Philadelphia pair, expect to change that. If they are in form, they should top the 1,278 with which H. Reimeyer and H. Cook of Irvington, N. J., are holding this year's doubles lead.

Tampa, Fla.—Babe Herman, the well-known holdout, became a full fledged Cincinnati Red today, bouncing smiling from an early morning conference in which he was understood to have signed a contract paying him $16,500 a year.

With signing, he became Cincinnati's ace, the keystone of the baseball arch the Reds hope to crown with a pennant.

For the first time since training began, the Reds roster is complete. Stripp and Cuccinello, two troublesome non-signers, went to Brooklyn in the trade that brought the slugger Herman here and with Ernest Lombardi and Wally Gelbert, the latter already looked upon as likely to grab a regular infield berth.

Herman reached camp yesterday, while the Reds were crossing bats 7 to 4. President Widney Weil with the Philadelphia Athletics, lost-hurried back from Fort Myers to meet him, and they went into a three-hour conference that ended in early morning smiles.

Rumors that Herman had been obtained only for a possible swap with the Chicago Cubs now are discarded. Well previously had declared Herman was Cincinnati's for keeps.

Manager Don Howley already had relied on the slugger Babe to pre-empt figuring on the hits he could duke.

Bradenton, Fla.—Tex. Carleton, Cardinals recruit who played last year with Houston in the Texas League, appears to be making the grade for a regular berth with the world's champions.

Has "Bulk" and Vitamin B for Constipation; Also Iron for Blood

In ten years, Kellogg's All-Brans has gained an increasing number of friends. Today, it is used by millions with satisfactory results.

New tests show added reasons for the success of ALL-BRAN. Laboratory experiments prove it has "bulk" to exercise the intestines, and Vitamin B to help tone the intestinal tract.

Another benefit of ALL-BRAN is that it has twice as much blood-building iron as an equal amount by weight of beef liver.

The headaches, loss of appetite and energy that so often result from constipation can be overcome by this pleasant cereal. How much better than using habit-forming pills and drugs.

ALL-BRAN action is gentle. Its "bulk" is much like that of lettuce. Within the body, it absorbs moisture and forms a soft mass. Gently it clears the intestines of wastes.

Two tablespoonfuls daily are sufficient to overcome most types of constipation. If your intestinal trouble is not relieved this way, see your doctor.

Serve as a cereal, or use in cooking. Tempting recipes on the red-and-green package. Sold by all grocers. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

Winter Haven, Fla.—Many of the Phillies regulars remained in camp for a day of real rest today as the rookies left for Fort Myers to meet the Athletics.

Captain Whitney, Chuck Klein, Dick Bartell and Mickey Mallon remained behind, along with the regular pitchers.

Biloxi, Miss.—The five rookie pitchers trying out for the Washington Senators must work fast if they expect to place with the big league outfit.

Manager Walter Johnson served notice today he cannot wait much longer for performance. The showing hasn't been any too brilliant in four weeks of training and five exhibition games. Frank Ragland is the only one who has displayed much stuff. He may place as relief man.

San Francisco.—The Chicago Cubs were slated to open a week of exhibition games against the San Francisco Seals today, and the series meant much to three athletes.

Rogers Hornsby intends to turn an outfielder and a pitcher over to Los Angeles any day now, and the unwilling candidates appear to be Dan Taylor and Pitchers Frank (Dutch) Henry and Ed Baecht.

San Antonio, Tex.—Mar. 20.—Manager Lew Fonseca's threat to whittle the Chicago White Sox roster, delayed several times, is about to be carried out.

Los Angeles, Cal.—Phil Page, recruit pitcher and former Penn State athletic star, is the first member of the Detroit Tiger training squad to feel the pruning hook. His release to Seattle of the Pacific Coast League was announced last night.

This was his third bid for a berth with the Tigers. He pitched for Seattle last year, winning 15 and losing 15 games. Previously he had played with the Springfield, Mass. and Toronto clubs of the Eastern and International Leagues.

St. Petersburg, Fla.—Frank Crossett, Pacific Coast star, came to the New York Yankees with a reputation as a "chop" hitter but he has been taking a full cut at the ball in the training season.

He clouted a home run yesterday to maintain his record for at least one extra-base hit in every exhibition game he's played with the Yankees.

Los Angeles.—There are signs and portents that all is not well with the ailing arm of Hughie Critz, little second baseman of the New York Giants.

Critz has been doing little but lobbing the ball around the diamond in the games he has played so far and there is some fear that his arm never will be able to stand the strain of a quick, hard throw.

Clearwater, Fla.—If Hack Wilson can keep up the good work the Brooklyn Dodgers may not miss Babe Herman so much after all.

Wilson leads the club in batting so far with an average of .480. He has collected 12 hits in 25 times at bat. He has clouted three home runs and batted in 13 runs in eight games.

N. B. A. To Clean Up Rackets In Boxing

Cincinnati, Mar. 22.—(AP)—A fight by the National Boxing Association to clear the trade of racketeers was under way.

A call has been sent out to all boxing commissions affiliated with the national organization to draw the check rein on "fake" bouts, obvious mismatches, and attempts to build up false reputations.

If, despite those precautions, odorous affairs are foisted on the faithful, the National Association suggests that those responsible be permanently suspended from activities in the states where the N. B. A. holds sway.

What was the immediate cause of the broadcast was not definitely known.

The association in its statement said:

"The attention of the National Boxing Association has been directed to a decided movement upon the part of certain managers and so-called booking agencies for boxers, to make a 'racket' out of the boxing sport by matching inferior boxers with outstanding contenders, and it is said that some of these agencies even go so far as to arrange fake boxing matches with a full understanding between the contestants beforehand."

"It is suggested that all commissions who may not have a complete file or full information as to the ability and integrity of boxers or wrestlers, apply by letter or wire for such information in order to safeguard the paying public against unscrupulous managers and promoters."

It is further suggested that when ever it is found that a "rigger" or fake fight is foisted upon the public that all parties of the affair be called before the commission and suspended for life.

Dempsey Unable To Knock Out Doctor

Toronto, Ont., Mar. 22.—(AP)—A crowd of 9000 fans braved the worst snow storm of the season to see Dempsey floor young Joe Doctor of Buffalo three times in a four round exhibition no decision bout here last night.

After battering Doctor about the head and body in the first round, Dempsey floored the youngster with a left hook early in the second round. Dempsey dealt out heavy punishment through the last two rounds but Doctor stood up under the fire gamely. Dempsey weighed 191 pounds; Doctor 184.

Phar Lap Through At Agua Caliente

Agua Caliente, Mex., March 22.—(AP)—Phar Lap, giant Australian thoroughbred which came from behind to win the $50,000 Agua Caliente Handicap Sunday, has made his last appearance on the local track for this season.

David J. Davis, owner of the horse, said he had been forced to cancel plans for entering Phar Lap in the $2,500 Agua Caliente Consolation Cup race next Sunday because of a slight bruise on the thoroughbred's foot.

Davis said the horse definitely would race at Chicago.

Race Of Century In Prospect In Chicago

Chicago, Mar. 22.—(AP)—Chicago racing enthusiasts already are beginning to smack their lips at the prospect of a "race of the century" next summer, probably in the Arlington Gold Cup.

Phar Lap, Australia's big red menace to the peace and happiness of American owners, has been nominated for most of the important stake races at Washington Park and Arlington Park. Mate, one of the country's two great three-year-olds of the 1931 season, is eligible for the Washington Park events and Twenty Grand, the other 1931 star, is expected to start his campaign at Arlington.

The Arlington Gold Cup appears to be the spot for the "race of the century." All three stars are eligible for this event, along with the Arlington Handicap and the Stars and Stripes Handicap. In the latter two stakes, however, weights will be assigned by the track handicapper, and the three thoroughbreds probably will not get together.

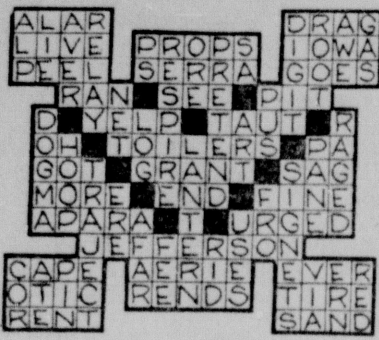

The Gold Cup is a weight-for-age affair, and if Phar Lap, Mate and Twenty Grand train properly, a race surpassing the international struggles between Zev and Papyrus and Epitard against America's Best is the prospect.

WET REPUBLICAN BLOC HAS SLATE FOR DELEGATION

New Movement Is Started By Cook County Republicans Today

Chicago, Mar. 22.—(AP)—An active campaign was started today to elect a bloc of Illinois delegates to the national Republican convention opposed to prohibition and opposed to any candidate for President who does not accord with its platform.

B. W. Snow, Republican county chairman, launched the movement which he said was for the "salvation of the party." Supporting him was a slate of 15 candidates for delegates to the convention.

Although it was regarded as an anti-Hoover movement in some quarters, the group announced it was not committed to any candidacy, but stood for a national platform consistent with its program and would be "unalterably opposed to the selection of any candidate who does not accord with such a platform."

The candidates submitted the following as their "program of action in the convention:

Proposed Program
"Put an end to all government activities that compete with private initiative, thus restoring that individual liberty in government and individualism in industry which our fathers established."

"Move toward a balancing of budgets and eventual reduction of national taxation by wiping out unnecessary governmental activities, cutting off boards, bureaus and commissions whose work can be dispensed with, and continued deflation of all costs of government."

"Proceed at once toward the repeal of the 18th amendment and, pending that final action, enact such legislation as will permit the manufacture of wine and beer under such regulations as will prevent the return of the open saloon."

"We will support for presidential nomination only candidates whose records are in harmony with these declarations."

The candidates already pledged to this program are all from Cook county (Chicago). They invited candidates from other sections of the state to join their movement. The Illinois primary is April 1. There is no designation of the ballot to show the voters how the delegate might cast his ballot in the convention, but many of the candidates are understood to favor the renomination of President Hoover.

The Snow slate will take its campaign to the voters in a radio address tonight.

One of the candidates on the Snow slate, Edgar J. Cook, was in Washington today in the interest of a "Progressive" anti-Hoover movement at the convention.

Cook conferred with Senator Hiram Johnson yesterday and said the Californian told him he favored a "concerted movement to bring out of the convention a candidate opposed to the existing order of things." Cook said he also planned to see Senators Borah, Norris, LaFollette and Nye.

McAdoo Sees Garner: No Advice Offered!
Washington, March 22.—(AP)—William G. McAdoo said after a conference today with Speaker John Garner, that while the Texan was not seeking the Democratic presidential nomination, the boom he was growing, and California would send an instructed delegation for him to Chicago.

The former Democratic Secretary of the Treasury, who heads the Garner-pledged slate of delegate candidates in the California primary in May, flew here last night on business and called on Mr. Garner at the capitol to pay his respects.

"We didn't discuss politics," Mr. McAdoo said, but as I was leaving I expressed to him the opinion that while he was not seeking the nomination California would send an instructed delegation for him just the same."

McAdoo said he talked government finances with the Speaker in a general way but didn't offer any advice, nor was any sought.

The time-a-dance girl

BY JOAN CLAYTON

BEGIN HERE TODAY
ELLEN ROSSITER, beautiful 20-year-old, loves LARRY HARROWGATE, young artist. When he becomes engaged to another girl, Ellen agrees to marry STEVEN HARCLAY, 37 years old and wealthy. Her impoverished family is indebted to Harclay.

Harclay has been married before. A scandal accompanied his Mexican divorce from Leda Grayson, dancer. To avoid notoriety Ellen and Harclay are secretly married. They drive to a long island home, deserted except for FERGUS, a butler. There Harclay suffers a heart attack. LUIS SYMES, Harclay's lawyer, arrives with doctors and nurses. Harclay dies at dawn.

Symes tells Ellen her marriage is not legal because papers proving Harclay's divorce from Leda Grayson have been stolen. Ellen yields all claim to Harclay's fortune to avoid scandal. She believes she must keep her marriage secret to protect Harclay's home and her own.

She learns Larry Harrowgate is Harclay's nephew. Heartbroken, FERGUS, she goes to a butler's office and tells him she is going back to work at Dreamland, a dance hall where her mother lives. She advises her not to tell Larry of the marriage to Harclay.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY
CHAPTER XLII
"Of course I'd want to tell him about Steven," Ellen went on, "though I thought telling him would destroy his faith in me or destroy any happiness we might otherwise build up together. I wouldn't tell."

"My child, you've grown up," Symes told her a little sadly. The next day, Sunday, ushered in the first of the autumn rains. All day long the rain came down. Late in the afternoon Myra and Bert, bundled into slickers and galoshes, called at the old apartment. They carried damp, heavy armloads of Sunday newspapers.

There was nothing about Steven Harclay in the news columns but in one of the society sections Ellen found a picture of Larry, an old picture badly reproduced. Seeing it, she was seized with sharp longing for him, to hear his gay voice and careless laugh.

When no one was observing her Ellen tore out the picture. "Ha!" Myra exclaimed significantly. Ellen whirled. Her color deepened and she had an impulse to hide the picture but she did not. She only stood flushing furiously, the picture pressed against her heart.

"I was wondering if you'd do that," Myra observed, a wise smile on her lips. "I saw the picture, too."

"Why shouldn't I?" Ellen demanded in a trembling, half defiant way. "No reason at all, my dear. Here's wishing you all the luck in the world!"

"It doesn't really seem right for me to be thinking of Larry, does it?" Ellen asked timidly. "Goodness!" Myra ejaculated.

The following night Ellen returned to Dreamland and danced again. Salomon rejoiced at the chance to regain her services. None of the other hostesses was inquisitive about what she had been doing—none, that is, except Tony. Tony was difficult with her teasing, persistent questions but Ellen only told her that she had changed her mind about being married. After a while Tony reluctantly let the matter drop there.

A light and feverish restlessness seized her when she heard the familiar voices, saw the familiar setting and familiar faces. As she danced again and again and filled her pocketbook with green tickets, as she sat smiling across

"Haven't you learned yet that love has nothing to do with right and wrong? The person who said all's fair in love and war understood that."

Ellen crossed the room and sank to the footstool at Myra's feet. She tipped her head back so that it touched her sister's knee and stared into the blue and orange glow of the gas log. Delightfully she let her thoughts center on Larry.

"Maybe I've learned now," she said dreamily, after a long silence. She added, "I suppose it's right that it should be that way and right that the world should go on. Everything was so horrible at first I couldn't seem to remember Steven at all. The whole thing was mixed up with misery and shame and the horrible, horrible way I felt when I found out what had happened. Now I know I'll never forget Steven or how kind he was, how generous, how good."

"That hasn't anything to do with the way you feel about Larry," Myra interrupted. "No, I guess it hasn't."

Both girls were silent and then Myra said abruptly, "Did Mr. Symes tell you how the suits between Mrs. Harrowgate and Leda Grayson have been settled? Which one's to get Steven's money?"

"He told me they'll probably settle out of court," Ellen responded in a vague, uninterested way. "Steven's last will, the last one he signed, left most of his money to his sister but I guess Leda Grayson, as his widow—she seems to be accepted as his widow—probably has a claim on some of it."

"You aren't sorry about that?" Myra asked curiously. Ellen considered. "It would have Organized crime is rapidly becoming more powerful and more nationalized

in the United States.

It no longer recognizes state lines.
High-powered automobiles, airplanes,
radio and other modern inventions are being used by gangsters as they broaden their field from the strictly local areas in which they formerly operated. Gangs in widely-separated cities are now working together as the "crime trust" expands.

The action of Colonel Lindbergh in appealing to gang leaders for the return of his kidnapped baby underworld now holds.

I do not blame Colonel Lindbergh;
it is natural that a man in his position would feel justified in using any means that he thought would restore his little son. The kidnapping being a criminal act, Lindbergh would naturally appeal to criminals for aid.

These growing gang elements are powerful, both as the result of their own organizations of criminals and their favorable connections with machine politicians in various cities.

They have established a far-reaching intelligence system that is a positive marvel of efficiency and through such channels they should be able to give great assistance, if willing, in finding kidnapped persons
like the Lindbergh baby.

BEST IN COUNTRY.
There is no use closing our eyes to the facts. I believe that organized crime in the United States have an intelligence system that is second to none; that its operation is wide spread over the country.

Where is this increasing power of the underworld propelling us?
It is driving us to a point where the citizens will have to awaken to the power of the ballot and elect public officials who are far above either criticism or suspicion. Without an alliance between crooked political groups and gangsters, these gangs could not exist.

Most of the use of gangdom in this country has been in the last years. I venture the assertion that in another 10 years—unless there is a drastic tightening up in law enforcement, not only in the police departments but also among prosecutors and courts—there will be chaos in law enforcement. In fact, there will be practically no law enforcement.

There are many examples of the broadening activities of these criminals. The bold robbery of the First National Bank of Lincoln, Neb., in which bandits with machine guns got nearly $2,500,000 while 200 persons looked on is one example.

MONEY GIVES POWER.
Organized crime is gaining in power through its ability to make political connections and its ability to pay. Without their money, a political leader would not even tell a gangster the time of day. The statement that money is the root of all evil is never so true as in our gangster situation today.

Money is the life-blood of gangs;
shut off their revenues from gambling houses, speak-easies and the like and they must die.

What part has prohibition played
in this situation?
I contend that we never have had prohibition in this country, meaning observance of this law.

It was expected when the 18th amendment was put into effect, that the local law enforcing agencies of the country would carry on an effective program of enforcement. As a matter of fact, they have done
very little indeed to enforce this law, notwithstanding it is their sworn duty to do so. All law enforcement agencies in the country must take an oath to uphold the Constitution—
but do they uphold it?

Practically the entire burden of enforcing prohibition has fallen on the shoulders of the Federal government. This laxity by local officials has brought about a situation that lends itself to graft, to easy money that supplies a large part of gangdom's revenues.

THE CRIME TRUST
Second in the Series of Articles
By Alexander Jamie
Director of the Chicago Secret Six

The type of dynamite bomb often used by Chicago gangsters to enforce their demands—to induce a speaker to buy their beer, or a merchant to join some racketeering "protective association"—is being exhibited above by Alexander Jamie, director of Chicago's Secret Six. This bomb, ignited by a fuse, has been cut open to show its construction. On his desk are gangster guns. At the left is shown Gus Winkler, who figured in the return of $600,000 in stolen bonds and who is considered by authorities as one of the smartest and most fearless figures in cause of organized crime. The money that comes from gambling houses vice and racketeering also feeds this sinister industry. We prohibition sinister industry. We had racketeers before we had the prohibition law. There are labor racketeers today that were operating 30 years ago.

Not only are liquor, vice and gambling now highly organized, but in addition other crimes are now being committed by syndicates of criminals. For illustration, most of the big bank robberies are now done
by organized groups.

The "Secret Six" has compiled the photos and police records of a well-organized group of from 150 to 175 men who prey on banks in the midwest. In actual operation, they split into several small groups, but they all know each other, work together and exchange information that may be of benefit in bank robberies.

I venture to say that practically all the major bank robberies in the mid-west can be laid to these 150 or 175 men. Of course, there are bank robberies committed by others, but these usually are small jobs.

"FENCES" AID ROBBERS
These organized bandits have their "fences" for the disposal of stolen property, such as bonds and securities. Usually, these "fences" are shady brokers. Sometimes they handle these stolen bonds directly,
but in cases where the stolen bonds
are very "hot" and the risk is grave, this shady broker will dispose of them through an innocent broker friend.

A favorite method is for the shady broker to tell his innocent

friend that if his bank learns he has such a large amount of bonds the bank will call his note, or give some other excuse. The "fencing" cost on stolen securities runs from 25 to 60 per cent, depending on the number of hands they go through.

I have been asked many times if there is a "master mind" that has supreme direction over all these organized underworld activities.
Frankly, I do not know. Such evidence would be very difficult to obtain.

PRODUCTION COST
ON CORN, WHEAT,
SOY BEANS LOWER

Illinois Farmers Effectuated
A Considerable Reduction

Urbana, Ill., March 22.—(UP)—
Illinois farmers cut the cost of producing corn, soybeans and wheat to the lowest levels recorded in twenty years during 1931, according to figures announced today by R. H. Wilcox, of the farm organization and management department, College of Agriculture, University of Illinois.

Despite the new low records,
which are based on cost figures farmers kept in cooperation with the department, the crops failed to make profits at prevailing prices,
Wilcox explained.

Corn, the principal crop of the state, it was shown, cost $21.96 an acre for growing and harvesting, the figure including taxes and interest on land valued at $180 an acre, which is approximately the same value used throughout the 20 year period. The yield was 48 bushels an acre, making the bushel cost 46 cents.

Interest on investment in land at five per cent amounts to $9 an acre or about 19 cents a bushel of corn, showing that with present prices farmers are getting no return for their investment after direct growing expenses are met, Wilcox said.
On the other crops, he declared,
farmers are not even meeting growing expenses with present prices.

"The new low record cost for corn was most nearly approached in 1929
when the cost was 50 cents a bushel," said Wilcox.

"About the normal five year average amount of horse and tractor labor was used on the 1931 crop, but the man labor was cut about two hours an acre, in spite of the fact that all of the corn on these farms was husked by hand.

"It cost farmers $20.82 an acre to grow and harvest soybeans in 1931,
including taxes and interest on land.
The average yield was 24½ bushels
an acre, making the beans cost 86 cents a bushel.

"Costs of growing and harvesting winter wheat totaled $18.86 an acre, including taxes and interest on land. The average yield on cost of 72 cents a bushel. Wheat land on these farms was valued at $170 an acre.

"Oat costs in 1931 averaged $18.13 an acre, or 39 cents a bushel on the basis of average yields of 46 1-3 bushels an acre. This was not a new low, for they have been two years costs have been below 39 cents a bushel since the cost work began that oats bushel. These were years of good yields.

"Farmers were able to lower their 1931 production costs by careful paring of their expenses and by watching their direct cash outlays. This was particularly true with respect to labor and power costs.

"Wages paid by these farmers in 1931 were such that the average cost of man labor in the field was 21 cents an hour. This compares with a cost of 40 cents an hour for farm labor in 1927. Man labor alone makes up 39 to 35 per cent of the operating expense in the production of corn.
"Very marked reductions were made in the cost of horse labor in 1931 owing primarily to the sharp decline in feed crop prices. Horses were carried through last year with the lowest cost a head since 1915.
For the coming year cost of hired labor and feed costs for horses should show further reductions."

McBride Says Wets
Will Make No Gains

Washington, Mar. 22.—The prediction was made Monday by F. Scott McBride, Superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League, that anti-prohibitionists would not make any substantial gains in the next Congress.

He made this forecast in a statement summing up an analysis of the recent prohibition roll call in the House, coupling it with a declaration that the League will consider th votes cast in favor of submitting repeal to the people as wet votes. This he said, even though not all of the 187 representatives who voted that way are anti-prohibitionists.

At the same time, McBride said
the analysis showed neither party could afford to place a repeal or modification plank in its national platform and neither party would be able "to deliver" any considerable proportion of its dry strength in partisan support of a wet program."

A Higher Quality Of Eggs Urged By I.A.A.
Chicago, Ill.—(AP)—Production of higher quality eggs by Illinois farmers to meet western competition was urged by P. A. Gougler, director of produce marketing for the Illinois Agricultural Association.

Gougler pointed out that many dealers are now paying a premium for quality eggs and urged that these buyers be encouraged by the patronage of farmers who produce high quality products.

"We must pay particular attention to quality production if we are to maintain our nearby markets," he said. "This is especially true of egg production in Illinois at present. Chicago, our principal market for eggs, is becoming more and more discriminating as to quality.

"Some of the large chain stores on the Chicago market are now handling only Pacific coast eggs. They prefer them because such eggs are of better quality and are more uniform. Illinois farmers should market their eggs on a graded basis, and there is no better way to do this than through co-operative marketing."

A survey made by the University of Illinois on the sale of graded eggs in co-operation with 25 Chicago stores showed that 60 per cent of the customers buying "special" eggs bought no other kind and that the demand for this grade was increasing constantly.

The price paid for these "specials" varied from 12 to 20 cents per dozen over the price paid for bulk eggs. Five grades were handled and all grades were sold entirely on their merits without any advertising.

"Illinois farmers are passing up an opportunity to satisfy this special market with high-quality eggs," he said, "because they have not set up the machinery to grade and handle their products. They should not only attempt to meet the present requirements for high grade eggs, but they should demand that all their eggs be purchased on a graded basis. This is only fair to the farmer who produces quality eggs."
